the muslim speaks reimagines islam as a strategy for investigating the modern condition rather than imagining it as an issue external to a discrete west khurram hussain constructs islam as internal to the elaboration and expansion of the west in doing so he reveals three discursive traps that of freedom reason and culture that inhibit the availability of islam as a feasible critical interlocutor in western deliberations about moral intellectual and political concerns through close examination of this inhibition hussain posits that while islamophobia is clearly a moral wrong depoliticization more accurately describes the problems associated with the lived experience of muslims in the west and elsewhere weaving together his conclusions in the hope of a common world khurram hussain boldly and quite radically deems that what islam needs is not depoliticization but infact repoliticization

the story this book follows begins on august 15 1947 as the new nation states of india and pakistan prepared to negotiate land and power the citizens of the princely state of hyderabad experienced the unravelling of an intense political conflict between the union government of india and the local ruler the nizam of hyderabad the author explores how the state of hyderabad was struggling to produce its own tools of cultural renaissance and modernity in the background of the union government of india s deployment of the central army the nizam s idea of an muslim state and the telangana armed struggle fostered by leftist parties with evidence from the oral histories of various sections both muslims and non muslims and a wide variety of written sources and historical documents this book captures such an intense moment of new politics and cultural discourses islamist thinkers used to debate the doctrine of the caliphate of man which holds that god is sovereign but has appointed the multitude of believers as his vicegerent andrew march argues that the doctrine underpins a democratic vision of popular rule over governments and clerics but is this an ideal regime destined to survive only in theory in this groundbreaking study sherali tareen presents the most comprehensive and theoretically engaged work to date on what is arguably the most long running complex and contentious dispute in modern islam the barelvī deobandī polemic the barelvī and deobandī groups are two normative orientations reform movements with beginnings in colonial south asia almost two hundred years separate the beginnings of this polemic from the present its specter however continues to haunt the religious sensibilities of postcolonial south asian muslims in profound ways both in the region and in diaspora communities around the world defending muhammad in modernity challenges the commonplace tendency to view such moments of intra muslim contest through the prism of problematic yet powerful liberal secular binaries like legal mystical moderate extremist and reformist traditionalist tareen argues that the barelvī deobandī polemic was instead animated by what he calls competing political theologies that articulated during a moment in indian muslim history marked by the loss and crisis of political sovereignty contrasting visions of the normative relationship between divine sovereignty prophetic charisma and the practice of everyday life based on the close reading of previously unexplored print and manuscript sources in arabic persian and urdu spanning the late eighteenth and the entirety of the nineteenth century this book intervenes in and integrates the often disparate fields of religious studies islamic studies south asian studies critical secularism studies and political theology the book investigates modern qur'an commentaries in south asia and engages with how muslim scholars have imagined and assessed their past intellectual heritage the research is focused on british india from the time of the mutiny of 1857 to the moment of the partition of united india in 1947 offering critical scrutiny of muslim exegesis of the qur'an in north india the study especially focuses on the qur'anic thought of sayyid ahmed khan d 1989 ashraf ali thanawi d 1943 and hamid al din farahi d 1930 the volume challenges widespread assumptions of an all pervasive reform and revivalism underlying the academic study of islam instead of looking for muslim revivalism and reform as epistemological foundations it stresses the study of modern qur'an commentaries in particular local and cosmopolitan contexts departing from the oft repeated explanations of muslim scholarship and modern islam through the lens of traditionalism and modernism it discovers how muslim scholars viewed themselves in relation to the islamic tradition and how they imagined and assessed their past intellectual heritage studying the history of the interpretation of the qur'an in the multiple contexts of nineteenth and early twentieth century british india the book will be of interest to readers of qur'anic studies modern islam and south asian studies this volume collects reflections on secularity from the middle east and north africa to highlight proximate connections as well as resonances with debates elsewhere it includes premodern contributions from the region as well as jewish thought from europe that have provided significant references for modern appropriations of secularity the texts for the most part previously untranslated reflect commonalities within the region as well as its great diversity thus while islam is a common reference for most of our authors the selections point to its varied invocations in the interest of differing political ends others write from a christian or jewish perspective or subscribe to non religious intellectual traditions they range from premodern muslim jurisprudents and philosophers to ottoman statesmen arab socialist and nationalist intellectuals of the interwar period iranian revolutionaries israeli novelists and finally post secular intellectuals lay and religious predominantly from the former islamic heartland modern arab states and iran several introductions weave together the swathe of topics raised in the discussions beginning with a schematic presentation of the concerns that undergird the volume's organization what would it mean to imagine islam as an immanent critique of the west sayyid ahmad khan lived in a time of great tribulation for muslim india under british rule by examining khan's work as a critical expression of modernity rooted in the muslim experience of it islam as critique argues that khan is essential to understanding the problematics of modern islam and its relationship to the west the book re imagines islam as an interpretive strategy for investigating the modern condition and as an engaged alternative to mainstream western thought using the life and work of nineteenth century indian muslim polymath khan 1817 1898 it identifies muslims as a viable resource for both critical intervention in important ethical debates of our times and as legitimate participants in humanistic discourses that underpin a just global order islam as critique locates khan within a broader strain in modern islamic thought that is neither a rejection of the west nor a wholesale acceptance of it the author calls this critical islam by bringing khan's critical engagement with modernity into conversation with similar critical analyses of the modern by reinhold niebuhr hannah arendt and alasdair macintyre the author shows how islam can be read as critique this book explores the ideological rivalry which is fuelling political instability in muslim polities discussing this in relation to pakistan it argues that the principal dilemma for muslim polities is how to reconcile modernity and tradition it discusses existing scholarship on the subject outlines how muslim political thought and political culture have developed over time and then relates all this to pakistan's political evolution present political culture and growing instability the book concludes that traditionalist and secularist approaches to reconciling modernity and tradition have not succeeded and have in fact led to instability and that a revivalist approach is more likely to be successful
